

PRESENT PERFECT VS. PAST PERFECT

Directions: Use the present perfect or the past perfect of the verbs in parentheses.

1. Part A: Oh my! We're too late. The bus (depart, already) _____.
Part B: That's alright. We'll catch the next bus to Vienna
2. Last Tuesday, we went to the station to catch a bus to Vienna, but we were too late. The bus (depart, already) _____.
3. Part A: You can go back to sleep. It's only five o'clock in the morning.
Part B: I'm not tired. I (sleep, already) _____ for nine hours.
I'm going to get up now.
4. I woke up at five this morning, but I couldn't go back to sleep. I wasn't tired. I (sleep, already) _____ for nine hours.
5. Part A: I'll introduce you to Professor Winkler at the meeting this afternoon.
Part B: There's no need to. I (meet, already) _____ her.
6. James offered to introduce me to Professor Winkler, but it wasn't necessary. I (meet, already) _____ her.
7. Part A: Do you want to go to the movies tonight?
Part B: What are you going to see?
Part A: A Bad Day to go Fishing.
Part B: I (see, already) _____ it. Thanks anyway.
8. I didn't go to the movies with Stew last Tuesday night. I (see, already) _____ it.
9. Part A: Judy? Jude! Is that you? How are you doing? I haven't seen you in forever!
Part B: Pardon me? Are you talking to me?
Part A: Oh. You're not Judy. I apologize. It's obvious that I (make) _____ a mistake. Please pardon me.
10. Yesterday, I approached a stranger who looked like Judy Bundy and started talking to her. But she wasn't Judy. It was obvious that I (make) _____ a mistake. I was very embarrassed.