

Midterm Idioms

Fill in the appropriate idiom using appropriate Midterm Idioms.

Last week, I _____ late because I hadn't slept well the night before. I had tossed and turned all night. I was so preoccupied when I finally got to the office that I _____ on two important clients, and made several mistakes on an important proposal. My boss made me _____ three times until I got it right.

When my friend Sara saw me, she started to ask me about my break-up with my fiancé. She said that my brother had told her about it. I told her I preferred if she didn't _____. I didn't want to _____ talking about it.

It all started one month ago. I was bored and restless and sitting at home alone because my fiancé had to study, so I decided to go to a bar to get a drink. To my surprise, I met Nicolás Lapentti, who is _____ his father. He was taking a few days off from his busy schedule. He was very nice and invited me out for a bite to eat and ended up talking for hours. At dinner, he proposed that I go to Guayaquil with him for the weekend, but I _____. It seemed so perfect since I had _____ tennis the year before. We could play together!

As I was leaving the restaurant, I noticed that I had lost my watch. I ran back into the restaurant and searched everywhere. It finally _____ in the bathroom. I was so relieved to have found it. On my way back to the car I saw my fiancé kissing another woman in the parking lot. I was stunned!

Nicolas told me that I should confront him, and I told him to _____ of my personal life. He tried to console me by saying that at least my fiancé didn't _____ it! Well you know what they say, one door closes and another one opens. I was off to Guayaquil!

Now I'm in love and can't concentrate on anything!